Fine Tuning Core Business From the Inside Out Active Aero Appoints Mitchell Noble COO, USA Jet Airlines

February 15, 2012, Belleville, Mich. – Active Aero Group Holdings, LLC named Mitch Noble, a 23 year veteran of the company, to the new position of Chief Operating Officer, USA Jet Airlines.

Mr. Noble acquired his extensive experience from the ground-up, as a mechanic, pilot, and business leader. His airline background includes work in cargo, government contract, air charter, passenger services, and maintenance operations management. Mitch held the position of President and General Manager of a Part 145 Repair Station for 7 years, before joining Active Aero Group. Since 1989, he has held progressively more responsible leadership roles. He holds Airline Transport Pilot and Airframe and Powerplant Maintenance certifications and is also a certified flight instructor.

“USA Jet’s focus is on safety and great customer service. I believe the company’s corporate integrity and track record is attributable to having the finest team members on board, making every flight a safe, efficient experience for our clients,” said Mr. Noble.

“Having seen and admired Mitch’s work, I have been impressed by his dedication to flight safety, and his knowledge of air operations and regulations. He showed his entrepreneurial talents leading USA Jet into passenger and U.S. government services. He continues to be an invaluable team member and leader in our company,” said Chris Healy, President and CEO of Active Aero Group Holdings, LLC.
